Dear Parish Family,

The Gospel for the Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time comes to us from Luke (10: 1-12, 17-20). Our Blessed Lord sends out seventy-two in pairs to proclaim the Gospel. They return “rejoicing” and proclaim that “even the demons are subject to us because of your (i.e. Jesus’) name.”

There is much work to be done in the Lord’s vineyard. This work is meant for all people. It is meant for single people, married people, priests, deacons and religious. All are called to do the Lord’s work each and every day. We are called to proclaim the kingdom of God with our words and our deeds. As Jesus says in today’s Gospel, “The harvest is abundant but the laborers are few.”

Let’s pray for an increase of vocations to the priesthood and religious life. Let’s also pray for those called to single life and the married life. Together, let’s commit ourselves to be faithful workers in the vineyard of the Lord.

God bless you.

Fr. Dan Redmond
